Badminton

1. During a crucial match, Vikrant executed a powerful smash, and the shuttlecock hit his opponent's racket before bouncing onto the opponent's body and landing out of bounds. The opponent claimed that the shuttlecock landed out, so the point should be his. However, the umpire awarded the point to Vikrant. Explain why the umpire made this decision. SQP 2022

2. During a local badminton championship, Shruti performed a high serve that hit the ceiling before landing inside the opponent's service court. Her opponent claimed a fault, but Shruti argued that since the shuttlecock landed within the correct boundaries, the serve should be considered legal. Explain why the umpire ruled it as a fault. 8. During a fast-paced rally, Arjun's opponent played a deceptive net shot. In an attempt to return it, Arjun's racket touched the net. The umpire called a fault and awarded the point to his opponent. Arjun argued that since he did not interfere with the shuttle's trajectory, his touch should not count as a fault. Explain why the umpire made this decision. SQP 2023

9. During a district-level badminton match, Pranav executed a powerful smash. His opponent attempted to block it but accidentally touched the shuttlecock with his hand before it fell onto the court. The umpire immediately called a fault, but the opponent insisted that he did not deliberately touch the shuttle. Explain why the umpire's decision was correct. COMP 2021

10. During a competitive doubles match, Aryan and his partner were serving when Aryan accidentally stood inside the service court while his partner executed the serve. The umpire called a fault, and the opposing team was awarded a point. Aryan argued that since he was not the one serving, his position should not matter. Explain why the umpire called a fault. Solution

1. During a crucial match, Vikrant executed a powerful smash, and the shuttlecock hit his opponent's racket before bouncing onto the opponent's body and landing out of bounds. The opponent claimed that the shuttlecock landed out, so the point should be his. However, the umpire awarded the point to Vikrant. Explain why the umpire made this decision. Ans SQP 2022 In badminton, if the shuttlecock touches a player's body before landing out of bounds, it is considered a fault by the player who was hit. The shuttlecock must be returned using the racket only. Since the shuttlecock first touched the opponent's racket and then his body, it was considered a valid hit by Vikrant.

2. The umpire ruled Shruti's serve a fault because in badminton, the shuttlecock must not touch any external structures such as the ceiling, walls, or lights. Even if it lands inside the opponent's court afterward, hitting the ceiling makes the serve illegal, so the point was awarded to her opponent.

3. Side Alley: In badminton, the side alley is the 1½ feet wide area added to each side of the court, which is used exclusively in doubles play. It extends the width of the court, allowing for wider shots and rallies in doubles matches.

4. (i) Smash: A powerful downward shot hit with force to make it difficult for the opponent to return.

(ii) Let: A temporary halt in play called by the umpire or a player due to an interruption; the point is replayed without changing the score.

(iii) Back Gallery: The area at the back of the court, between the back boundary lines, often used for defensive or clearing shots.

(iv) Rally: The continuous exchange of valid shots between players until the shuttlecock lands out of play or a fault occurs.

5. (i) Let: A let is called when play is stopped due to an external interruption, such as a shuttlecock getting stuck in the net or any unforeseen disturbance. The point is replayed, and the score remains unchanged.

(ii) Service Fault: A service fault occurs when a player delivers an illegal serve, such as:

- Serving from the wrong side of the court.
- Hitting the shuttlecock above waist height.
- Serving out of turn or by the wrong player.

(iii) Changing Ends: Players change ends:

- At the end of the first game.
- At the end of the second game.

(iv) Selecting a Court: The procedure for selecting a court typically involves a toss (coin flip or shuttle toss) to decide which player or team chooses their preferred side or service to start the game.

6. Players change ends in badminton in the following situations:

1. At the end of the first game.
2. At the end of the second game.
3. At the end of the third game, if a deciding game is played.
4. When a player/team reaches 11 points in the final (third) game.

7. Procedure for Selecting a Court in Badminton:

1. A toss is conducted before the start of the match.
2. The player or team winning the toss can choose either:
 - To serve first, or
 - To select a side of the court.
3. The opponent automatically gets the remaining choice.

8. In badminton, any contact with the net by a player's racket, body, or clothing during play is considered a fault, regardless of whether it affects the shuttlecock. Since Arjun's racket touched the net while attempting to return the shot, the umpire correctly ruled it a fault and awarded the point to his opponent.

9. In badminton, only the racket may be used to hit the shuttlecock. Any contact with a player's body—hand, arm, head, or other parts—is considered a fault, regardless of intent. Since Pranav's opponent touched the shuttlecock with his hand, the umpire correctly called a fault and awarded the point to Pranav.

10. In doubles badminton, both players on the serving side must be correctly positioned within their respective service courts before the serve is executed. Even if Aryan was not the server, standing incorrectly inside the service court violates the service positioning rules. This is considered a service fault, so the umpire correctly awarded the point to the opposing team.
